A: I had a similar issue where if an application called a jump address it jumped and it took me to a console interface. I was trying to make the.exe file play a game. I ended up copying and pasting the jump address into hexedit and deleted the line with the address in the "Data" field. Use this post to delete the bad line if you haven't already: How to delete a line in HexEdit in VB.NET If you would like to receive FREE FABULOUS Gold and Silver Jewelry from my website please complete the form below, and I will provide you a form to fill out in order to receive your FREE STUFF. *Note: You must submit your full name, email address, phone number, and physical address in order for your FREE order to be processed. ProszynkiQ: How to copy and paste using a prepared statement I want to do a copy-paste with some input parameters from my database to my external window and i'm a little lost with it. I already have a prepared statement and I want to make a copy-paste with user input parameters (ID and name of the user) How should I achieve this using a prepared statement? A: This can be achieved by replacing your prepare statement with a call to the APPEND function, which takes an INPUT-LIST and expands it into a VALUE-LIST. This function is used for large INSERT/UPDATES, and can be used by itself to insert all values in a single statement, but I've included an example of how this can be used with a prepared statement. 3da54e8ca3
