- Experience a story that unfolds through carefully written conversations between multiple characters - A psychological story that will haunt you for days after finishing it. - A visually stunning game that is full of creepy imagery and incredible animation - Find out why there are so many imposters in the world and why they are so bent on achieving their goals. - Get to know Holly Beltran, a scared girl with a dark past who has nightmares about something called The Ever-Hunger

LASTED 6 HOURS AND 9MIN 35S. This is a shortened version as we need to make a profit. THE FULL VERSION HAS 50 HOURS OF LIVE ACTION AND 2 HOURS OF UNDOABLE PIECES OF CRYPTIC ART.

ROAD TO PERFECTION Everything in this game was made by me with the sole exception of the musical score, which is composed by Christian Whitehead of the wonderful musician and composer band: Some critics like to call my game "art", "mega project" or "experimental". I don't really like these words because they put my game in a category of its own. I made this game because I wanted to take my work further and tackle a more personal story. I hope you enjoy and have a lovely day. — Maximilian Weichardt Pasted by TheSwerve on Aug. 18 Hey people! You probably know this already but actually it says if you want to get the owner's cut for my game you need to subscribe through Patreon. If you are already a patron, thank you so much. I also want to thank the people who purchased the game through here on Steam. They are very important to me and I truly hope you enjoy the game. If you would like to purchase the game, it is currently priced on the Steam store at 9.99 USD or 5.75 AUD per game through this Humble Bundle. It is currently also available for iPad, Android and Facebook. It is coming to the OUYA store and the PlayStation Store. I am working hard to get those out as well. I will make a trailer and a roadmap for the release and will post them in here. I also hope to host a livestream at some point to answer questions about the

The present invention relates to a new and distinct cultivar of Petunia plant, botanically known as Petunia×hybrida and hereinafter referred to by the name 'Duepeta'. The new Petunia plant is a product of a planned breeding program conducted by the Inventor in Rheinberg, Germany. The objective of the breeding program is to create new compact Petunia plants with numerous attractive flowers. The new Petunia plant originated from a cross-pollination made by the Inventor in April, 2012 in Rheinberg, Germany of a proprietary selection of Petunia×hybrida identified as code number T07-1901-005, not patented, as the female, or seed, parent with a proprietary selection of Petunia×hybrida identified as code number T07-2000-007, not patented, as the male, or pollen, parent. The new Petunia plant was discovered and selected by the Inventor as a single flowering plant from within the progeny of the stated cross-pollination in a controlled greenhouse environment in Rheinberg, Germany in May, 2015. Asexual reproduction of the new Petunia plant by terminal cuttings in a controlled greenhouse environment in Rheinberg, Germany since June, 2015 has shown that the unique features of this new Petunia plant are stable and reproduced true to type in successive generations.

So, I have been playing around with "per site user settings", and I found out that changing the language in the user settings does not affect the language used in the entire UI. Is there a way to set for example that all my reports will be displayed in english, no matter what language the administrator is using? I know that the language on the report can be changed, but I don't know how to set that from c9d1549cdd

Enjoy Joy Climb today, and share your thoughts with the world on Facebook! Who knows, you may even meet another Joy Climb fan on Facebook! GamesCom 2013 coverage 10 / 11 / 2013 You can download Joy Climb for free here (or try it in the browser here!) at Gamescom 2013. German videogame developers Robomodo and Spacetime Games announce the publication of their new adventure game, Joy Climb, a fast-paced, intuitive and retro-style platform game for the iPhone. The game has been developed in only seven months and is also playable in a browser. Joy Climb is available for iPhone and iPad and will be launched on iTunes in August. Joy Climb features intuitive game play, a super-fun music score and a retro look and feel. Players control a hard-shell chameleon that has to climb up the screen to the top of the cave, where they find a colorful hatch, thus defeating the evil CEO. In order to do this, the chameleon has to catch hold of the colorful blocks that appear on the screen. The best players will receive the title of Joyclimber. The game has been developed in collaboration with an illustrator and graphic designer by the name of André Ceysson. Joy Climb is available for free at the AppStore. In August, the game will be released in the German AppStore under the title Joy Climb in German. The German version will offer the necessary language and subtitles. This version is identical to the English AppStore version and will be available under the English title Joy Climb. Joy Climb is the first game of the internationally award-winning developer Robomodo, established in September 2011. Since then, Robomodo has already published games for the German AppStore, such as KittyPop and Space Shuttle Experiment. Joy Climb has been designed by André Ceysson, a Swiss illustrator and graphic designer. "If you find platform games fun, you'll also love Joy Climb", emphasizes Sandro Speck, one of the creative people behind Robomodo, in an interview with Arcade-TV. "We have created an intuitive platform game that is easy to play, but at the same time, where even novice players can have a lot of fun." Joy Climb is the first iOS game from Spacetime Games, an international mobile game studio founded in 2012. In addition to

What's new:

RotoBaller Tremendous breakthroughs in fantasy baseball statistics have been made in the last decade. One of the most significant was the development of Win Shares. Many people have questioned the wisdom of adding batting average to the list of stats one should calculate in one's pitching statistics. Anyone with half a brain knows that batting average adds zero meaningful information, but Win Shares does a much better job of gauging a player's actual value in-season and over the course of a career. Well Win Shares didn't sweep the sports world. Fans still kept screaming, "Why do you need Batting Average?" after the decision to add Weighted Runs Created stat to the equation was announced. Not everyone can see the beauty of adding runs. We are believers. Fans of fantasy baseball spend an inordinate amount of time wondering about the idea of WAR. One example of fan discomfort with the information is the popular agreement to remove batting average from the equation. The intent of the change was to make WAR a more accurate measurement of a player's seasons and lifetime value, but it lost a lot of adherents. What happens when you remove batting average from the equation? That's right, you lose great players from the equation. This is not a developed idea at this point. Most of us are just trying to add more information to our game. We are gradually changing everything. How about pitching? We developed WARP by the SABR guys. This is the math turned into a simple stat. Let's let pitcher WARP be the ultimate stat. To keep this short: WARP is calculated by adding all the accomplishments of a pitcher's career. Add pitching wins to their pitching stats, batting average to their hitting stats, and ERA to their batting stats. Give pitchers 1 run for a win, 1.5 runs for a hit, 1 run for an out, and then 2 runs for a hit of which there are 9 per game. The idea is that pitchers, like hitters, perform at their abilities over a full season. Why bother? There are many reasons to believe that this approach is significantly more accurate than relying on any one stat for fantasy purposes. After all, most stats have their limits. A player's fantasy value may be greater than his performance actually. The question becomes: does a better stat than batting average reveal a player who may perform better

Take a minute to relax on your tablet and have a look at these awesome screenshots. Trainscape is the answer to the question: what if world of lego was in the world of RL Imagine hundreds of LEGO track sets that you could buy anywhere in this free-to-play browser based MMO; each one with a unique building system, and a unique experience. Ready, Set. Build. Ride! [TRAINSCAPE IS A 'CLOAKING' MMO] TRAINSCAPE has been in closed alpha for over 2 years and is currently in closed beta. That means a member of the community might not know everything that's going on in the game right now. That is ok. Because this game is still very young. It's only just starting to grow, and it's evolving with the community's needs. You are a virtual town builder. You can design custom towns and lay down tracks to get people to move from one point to the other. You can also design themed communities that include a range of animated buildings and monsters. You can also ride trains to further explore the world that you've created. Currently there are four gameplay style options: ----- Trainscape City ----- A classic MMO style where you get to choose where your towns are. It is the default style of the game. The towns are located on different colored blocks. These blocks are found in every level of the game. Read more: ----- Trainscape Forts ----- This style is for when you prefer the world of lego. Read more: ----- Trainscape Outdoors ----- A more open style where you can almost go anywhere on the map and explore. What I mean by that is you can build things that are along the edge of the map.
