Resonant tunnelling through a graphene nanogap. We show experimentally the resonant tunnelling of a graphene nanoribbon through an atomically sharp graphene nanogap using local electron tunneling spectroscopy. We find that the conductance of the system displays resonant peaks with widths of order or one conductance quantum. Since our system provides a unique way to probe the conductance of a nanogap, it can be used to gain a better understanding of the electron transport mechanisms in atomically sharp nanostructures.Q: There is no ViewData item of type 'IEnumerable' that has the key 'CarId' I am using asp.net MVC 4.0 to create a CarSpotting web app. I am creating a ViewModel for the view which contains the data for the view: public class CarSpottingModel { public Car Spotting { get; set; } public IEnumerable CarId { get; set; } public string CarName { get; set; } public string SpotSize { get; set; } } The Spotting property contains a class Car as an item: public class Car { public int CarId { get; set; } public string CarNumber { get; set; } public string Make { get; set; } public string Model { get; set; } public int Mileage { get; set; } public int Year { get; set; } } And finally I am trying to bind CarId to an element of the view using a dropdownlist in a form: @Html.LabelFor(m => m.Spotting.CarId, Model.Spotting.Make) @Html.DropDownListFor(m => m.Spotting.CarId, Model.Spotting.CarId, "--Select--", new { @class = "form-control" }) But the error that I get is: There is no ViewData item of type 'IEnumerable' that has the key 'CarId' Any ideas please? Thanks A: It's because Spotting
